MOZART’S THE MAGIC FLUTE—HIS LAST OPERA TO BE PRODUCED BEFORE his untimely death at age 35—is a remarkable combination of musical and dramatic styles, from the earthly to the otherworldly. The story begins as a magical rescue mission, a plot outline that would have been familiar to Viennese audiences of the popular theater, but soon transforms into a fable of enlightenment and humanity. With its narrative of inner development and illumination, The Magic Flute imagines a world of peace, brotherhood, and love.

This Live in HD production, originally seen in 2006, presents the opera in an abridged English-language version of the production by the award-winning director of theater, opera, and film Julie Taymor. Taymor seeks to remain true to the fairy-tale aspect of the story while revealing what she calls its “darker face, the one that is hidden in the innocent shell of the unruly libretto but apparent in the exquisite subtlety of the music.” In developing the colorful visual style of her production, she was inspired by the image of the kaleidoscope, which she sees as an ideal way to express “both the exterior and inner landscapes of The Magic Flute.” Taymor’s whimsical production magnifies the opera’s emotional threads, highlights the humor, and captures the ethereal nature of Mozart’s music.

This guide is intended to help your students appreciate the opera within the context of 18th-century politics, philosophy, and musical style. By studying the plot’s themes of enlightenment in relation to the Age of Reason, students will discover some of the elements that make The Magic Flute not only a product of its age but also an enduring masterwork of the operatic canon. The activities on the following pages are designed to provide context, deepen background knowledge, and enrich the overall experience of this Live in HD transmission. This guide will also align with key strands of the Common Core Standards.
The activities in this guide will focus on several aspects of The Magic Flute:
- The opera’s context in the writings of the European Enlightenment
- The aria as a vehicle for personal expression
- The production’s distinctive use of puppetry and masks
- Creative choices made by the artists of the Metropolitan Opera for this production
- The opera as a unified work of art, involving the efforts of composer, librettist, and Met artists

This guide is intended to cultivate students’ interest in The Magic Flute, whether or not they have any prior acquaintance with opera. It includes activities for students with a wide range of musical backgrounds, and seeks to encourage them to think about opera—and the performing arts as a whole—as a medium of both entertainment and creative expression.

THE SOURCES: Emanuel Schikaneder—impresario, writer, actor, and singer—drew from a variety of sources in crafting the libretto for The Magic Flute, or Die Zauberflöte in the original German. Influences include Arthurian romance as well as more contemporary works such as a short story by the poet Christoph Martin Wieland in the 1780s that features a fairy who enlists a prince to rescue a young maiden, giving him a magic flute to help him along his way; and an essay on Egyptian mysteries by Vienna’s foremost Freemason, Ignaz von Born.

Schikaneder also drew from the performance history of Viennese popular theater, which embraced magic, lowbrow humor, mystery, spectacle, and moralizing sentiments. Its tradition also provided a model for the character of Papageno in the stock role of Hanswurst (“Jack Sausage”), a crafty but coarse type who usually falls prey to his baser instincts and provides much of the comic relief.

Since the early 19th century, singing voices have usually been classified in six basic types, three male and three female, according to their range:

Soprano
- the highest-pitched type of human voice, normally possessed only by women and boys

Mezzo-Soprano
- the female voice whose range lies between the soprano and the contralto (Italian "mezzo" = middle, medium)

Contralto
- the lowest female voice, also called an alto

Countertenor
- a male singing voice whose vocal range is equivalent to that of a contralto, mezzo-soprano, or (less frequently) a soprano, usually through use of falsetto

Tenor
- the highest naturally occurring voice type in adult males

Baritone
- the male voice lying below the tenor and above the bass

Bass
- the lowest male voice

Sarastro’s slave Monostatos pursues Pamina but is frightened away by Papageno. The birdcatcher tells Pamina that Tamino loves her and is on his way to save her. Led by the three spirits to the temple of Sarastro, Tamino learns from a high priest that it is the Queen, not Sarastro, who is evil. Hearing that Pamina is safe, Tamino uses his flute to charm the wild animals who threaten him, then rushes off to follow the sound of Papageno’s pipes. Monostatos and his men chase Papageno and Pamina but are left helpless when Papageno plays his magic bells. Sarastro enters in great ceremony. He punishes Monostatos and promises Pamina that he will eventually set her free. Pamina catches a glimpse of Tamino, who is led into the temple with Papageno.

Sarastro tells the priests that Tamino will undergo initiation rites. Monostatos tries to kiss the sleeping Pamina but is surprised by the appearance of the Queen of the Night. The Queen gives her daughter a dagger and orders her to murder Sarastro.

Sarastro finds the desperate Pamina and consoles her, explaining that he is not interested in vengeance. Tamino and Papageno are told by a priest that they must remain silent and are not allowed to eat, a vow that Papageno immediately breaks when he takes a glass of water from a flirtatious old lady. When he asks her name, she vanishes. The three spirits guide Tamino through the rest of his journey and tell Papageno to be quiet. Tamino remains silent even when Pamina appears. Misunderstanding his action for coldness, she is heartbroken.

The priests inform Tamino that he has only two more trials to complete his initiation. Papageno, who has given up on entering the brotherhood, longs for a wife instead. He eventually settles for the old lady. When he promises to be faithful she is suddenly transformed into the beautiful young Papagena but then immediately disappears. Pamina and Tamino are reunited and face the ordeals of water and fire together, protected by the magic flute.

Desolate to be without a wife, Papageno tries to hang himself on a tree but is saved by the flutes, which remind him that if he uses his magic bells he will find true happiness. When he plays the bells, Papagena appears and the two immediately start making family plans. The Queen of the Night, her three ladies, and Monostatos attack the temple but are defeated and banished. Sarastro blesses Pamina and Tamino as all join in celebrating the triumph of courage, virtue, and wisdom.

The Magic Flute History

1756 Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart is born on January 27, one of two surviving children of Leopold Mozart, a composer in the service of the Prince-Archbishop of Salzburg.

1762 At the age of seven, Mozart performs for the Empress Maria Theresia in Vienna, as a keyboard prodigy and composer. Over the next 11 years, the Mozart family tours throughout Europe, performing for members of the royalty and nobility.

1767 Mozart completes his first full-length dramatic work, Apollo et Hyacinthus, based on a Latin text drawn from Ovid. It is first performed in Salzburg on May 13.

1776 Emperor Joseph II dismisses the impresario of the Burgtheater, one of the two imperial court theaters in Vienna, and re-opens it as the “Nationaltheater,” the home of German drama. Two years later, Joseph founds the National-Singspiel, intended to encourage the composition of music dramas in German. Mozart’s Die Entführung aus dem Serail (1782) is the most successful of the singspiels created for the Burgtheater before the failure of the National-Singspiel in 1788.

1781 Mozart relocates to Vienna, seeking to make his living as an independent composer and performer in the culturally rich Habsburg capital, rather than solely under contract to a wealthy patron or the church.

1784 Mozart becomes a Freemason and joins the Viennese lodge “Zur Wohltätigkeit” (“Beneficence”), a community of liberal intellectuals whose philosophical interests aligned closely with the Enlightenment concerns of reason, nature, and the universal brotherhood of fellow men.

1786 Mozart completes Le Nozze di Figaro, the first of his collaborations with the librettist Lorenzo Da Ponte (followed by Don Giovanni in 1787 and Così fan tutte in 1790). The three works, masterpieces of dramatic structure and musical expression, number among the pinnacles of the opera buffa genre.

1787–89 The German poet Christoph Martin Wieland publishes Dschinnistan, a collection of stories, several of which inspire the plot of Die Zauberflöte, notably “Lulu, oder Die Zauberflöte,” which tells the story of Prince Lulu, who is enlisted by a “radiant fairy” to rescue a maiden who has been captured by an evil sorcerer, and who is provided with a magic flute to help him in his mission.

1789 The actor, librettist, and theatrical producer Emanuel Schikaneder takes over the direction of the Freihaus-Theater auf der Wieden in Vienna. His repertory includes musical dramas (mostly comprising singspiels), spoken plays with spectacular staging effects, as well as works by serious German dramatists. The theater’s audience bridges the different classes of Viennese society.

1791 Die Zauberflöte premieres on September 30 at the Theater auf der Wieden, with Schikaneder performing the role of Papageno and Mozart conducting. The opera receives 20 performances by the end of the following month, and over 200 performances by 1800.

1791 Mozart falls ill on November 22 and dies on December 5, likely from rheumatic fever.

Enlightened Opera: The Magic Flute as a Work of the Age of Reason

The era of the European Enlightenment—commonly understood as covering the years between 1680 and 1790—was a time of far-ranging changes to political structures, the social order, and the philosophical understanding of humanity. In diverse fields, ranging from public life to literature and beyond, the faculty of reason was held up as the path towards human improvement that would ultimately bring freedom, knowledge, and happiness. Several of Mozart’s operas reflect the currency of these issues when they were written in the late 18th century: Le Nozze di Figaro embodies the tensions between the nobility and the upwardly mobile servant class, while Cosi fan tutte is concerned with morality and women’s essential nature—both topics of significant discussion (and anxiety) at the time. In The Magic Flute, Mozart and his librettist, Emanuel Schikaneder, explored other aspects of Enlightenment thought: the nature of true knowledge, the development of character, and the highest ideals of humanity. In this activity, students will:

- read and discuss passages from the writings of select Enlightenment thinkers
- analyze excerpts from the libretto of The Magic Flute
- discover ways in which The Magic Flute is rooted in the social, moral, and philosophical ideas of its age

STEPS

Students will begin by recalling or learning a few of the key events and figures of the Enlightenment. They will then read and analyze a selection of brief quotes by Enlightenment figures, discussing them in groups. Following a quick study of the synopsis, students will engage in a close reading of portions of the opera’s libretto, comparing their assigned excerpts to Enlightenment principles. The activity closes with students listening to Mozart’s musical setting of each passage and noting how the music enhances their understanding of the text.

STEP 1: Depending on their grade level, students may have studied the Enlightenment previously. If so, invite them to recall significant events, people, and ideas associated with the movement. Write these items on the chalkboard, organizing them into a rough timeline, if possible. Answers may include such events as the American and French revolutions and the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the philosophy of René Descartes, the writings of Voltaire, and the discoveries in mathematics and physics by Isaac Newton. If students’ knowledge of the Enlightenment is more limited, you may prefer to have them review the sidebar The Age of Reason, as well as the synopsis found in this guide.

History and Social Studies

IN PREPARATION

For this activity, students will need the reproducible resources available at the back of this guide, as well as the audio selections from The Magic Flute available online or on the accompanying CD. You may also want to distribute photocopies of the sidebar The Age of Reason, as well as any limited, you may prefer to have them review the sidebar The Age of Reason, as well as the synopsis found in this guide.

CURRICULAR CONNECTIONS

History, Social Studies, Philosophy, Humanities, Music, Art

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- To become familiar with some of the philosophical concepts of the Enlightenment
- To explore ways in which Enlightenment ideals are represented in The Magic Flute
- To practice critical analysis by interpreting aspects of the opera’s plot and characters
- To become familiar with the story and music of The Magic Flute in advance of the Live in HD broadcast

COMMON CORE STANDARDS AND THE MAGIC FLUTE

The activity directly supports the following ELA-Literacy Common Core Standards:

- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.2 Determine the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary of how key events or ideas develop over the course of the text.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.SL.9-10.1.c Propel conversations by posing and responding to questions that relate the current discussion to broader themes or larger ideas, actively incorporating others into the discussion; and clarify, verify, or challenge ideas and conclusions.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RI.9-10.6 Determine an author’s point of view or purpose in a text and analyze how an author uses rhetoric to advance that point of view or purpose.

Finally, write one more event on your timeline: The Magic Flute, 1791. Mozart’s opera had its premiere that year in Vienna at the Theater auf der Wieden, a smaller suburban theater that was popular not only with the nobility but with all classes of Viennese society. By placing the opera on your timeline, you are making it clear that Mozart and his librettist, Emanuel Schikaneder, explored other aspects of Enlightenment thought: the nature of true knowledge, the development of character, and the highest ideals of humanity. In this activity, students will:

- René Descartes writes Discourse on the Method, in which he investigates the nature of thought (1637)
- Isaac Newton discovers the principle of gravity (1687)
- John Locke proposes a system of representative government (1690)
- Benjamin Franklin proposes the idea that lightning is caused by electricity (1750)
- Denis Diderot begins publishing his Encyclopédie, aimed at consolidating all human ideas and knowledge (1751)
- Voltaire publishes Candide, a satire of the idea that all things naturally turn out for the best (1759)
- The American Declaration of Independence is signed (1776)
- Immanuel Kant publishes the Critique of Pure Reason, which investigates the interaction between knowledge and experience (1781)
- The French Revolution begins (1789)
- Thomas Paine publishes The Rights of Man, arguing that revolution is justified when the government does not protect man’s natural rights (1791)

Many of the beliefs we hold today about freedom, government, and the inalienable rights of human beings would have been radical, fringe ideas in Mozart’s day. But it was precisely during that period—an era called the “Enlightenment,” coinciding with the late 17th through 18th century—that the roots of our modern belief systems were first developed and debated.

Beginning with philosophers such as René Descartes in France and Benedict Spinoza in Holland, thinkers began to re-examine old perspectives on the nature of the universe. Their yardsticks were logic, reason, and a kind of optimistic doubt, rather than purely religious faith. In England, Francis Bacon introduced the method of scientific examination, a new way of finding truth based on experiment and observation.

Before long, the tools of reason were being used to examine not only the natural world, but also the structure of society. They proposed, contrarily, that all people come into the world with “natural” rights—especially a right to liberty. These rights might be masked or distorted, reinforced or weakened, but they could not be eliminated. Such views would lead, by the end of the 18th century, to a war of independence in America and a revolution in France. By the end of the 18th century, the British-American writer Thomas Paine would refer to his era “the Age of Reason.”

Overall, the developments in thought and politics during the Enlightenment era affected large-scale changes in attitudes towards education, the exercise of the intellect, the rejection of superstition and violence, and the perfectibility of mankind—all ideas that find musical representation in The Magic Flute.

Political thinkers like François-Marie Arouet, known as Voltaire, in France, Jean-Jacques Rousseau in Switzerland, and, in England, Thomas Hobbes, David Hume, and John Locke, voiced the opinion that royalty and class systems were not part of the natural order. They proposed, contrarily, that all people come into the world with “natural” rights—especially a right to liberty. These rights might be masked or distorted, reinforced or weakened, defended or denied by the rules, structures, and class systems of society, but they could not be eliminated. Such views would lead, by the end of the 18th century, to a war of independence in England’s American colonies and a revolution, deposing the royalty, in France. By the end of the 18th century, the British-American writer Thomas Paine would refer to his era “the Age of Reason.”

Overall, the developments in thought and politics during the Enlightenment era effected large-scale changes in attitudes towards education, the exercise of the intellect, the rejection of superstition and violence, and the perfectibility of mankind—all ideas that find musical representation in The Magic Flute.

Schikaneder were working in the midst of momentous events and societal changes and expressed the changing values of the day in their works. You may also find it helpful to refer to the sidebar Mozart and Freemasonry for further details on how the ideals of Freemasonry intersected with those of the Enlightenment.

STEP 2: Next, divide students into groups and pass out the “Enlightenment Principles” handout found in the reproducible section at the back of this guide. Each of these brief statements reflects an important strain of Enlightenment thought, by thinkers from diverse fields. Have students read and discuss the statements and, on the space next to them, write a brief commentary or translation of the primary source excerpt. You may get students’ conversations started by asking the following questions:

- Can you paraphrase the statement in everyday language?
- Is the author talking about a particular group of people?
- Are there any assumptions at work behind this statement?
- Is there anything notable about the imagery that the author uses in the passage?

STEP 3: It will now be helpful for students to become familiar with the plot of The Magic Flute. Pass out copies of the synopsis, and by having students read it silently on their own, by having students take turns reading it aloud, or by a more active exploration such as enacting brief scenes, ensure that students understand the plot and can recall its basic elements.

STEP 4: Divide students into groups and assign each group one of the selected libretto excerpts found in the reproducible handouts. Using the Magic Flute Organizer handout from the back of this guide, students should review and analyze their excerpts, looking for themes and thoughts reflecting the statements from Step 2 above. Have students fill in their Organizer handouts as completely as they can, referring as necessary to the “Enlightenment Principles” handout.

STEP 5: After allowing ample time for students to complete their Organizer handouts, invite groups to the front of class to explain their interpretation of their brief scene and their understanding of its relation to Enlightenment principles, as reflected in their completed handouts. Although there are several possible interpretations of each scene, their comments may include the following:

Track 1: A Priest questions Tamino and challenges his preconceptions about the Queen of the Night. Though Tamino seeks love and virtue—worthy enterprises—the Priest reveals that Tamino is held back by his quest for death and vengeance. The Priest guides Tamino to a better understanding. The imagery draws on the notions of darkness and light, with darkness associated with superstition. The rejection of falsehood recalls Descartes.

FUN FACT Although the libretto of The Magic Flute has provoked some criticism for its seemingly uneven dramatic structure, the great German poet Goethe admired the story so much that he attempted to write a sequel. While he never finished this work, The Magic Flute’s librettist, Emanuel Schikaneder, found more success with his own sequel, Das Labyrinth oder Der Kampf mit den Elementen (“The Labyrinth or, The Fight with the Elements”). It preserves all of the characters of the original opera as well as a plot based on trials and tests of character. Das Labyrinth was set to music by composer Peter von Winter and premiered at Schikaneder’s Theater auf der Wieden in 1798.
Track 2: Pamina and Papageno celebrate their escape from Monostatos and hold music up as a force for good: it encourages peace and happiness. The passage again draws on the imagery of darkness and light, with light connected with happiness—reminiscent of Schiller.

Track 3: The chorus hails Sarastro as a benevolent leader, and Sarastro invites Tamino and Papageno to begin their rite of purification. The chorus joins in celebrating the triumph of virtue over vice, looking forward to the realization of an earthly paradise. The passage has themes in common with the Marquis de Condorcet, while the notion of purification calls to mind Kant’s process of enlightenment, as well as Pope.

Track 4: Sarastro expounds on the precepts of his temple. His order lives according to the ideas of love and forgiveness rather than revenge. He holds up faithfulness and honesty as virtues, connecting them with the image of light (see Schiller). These ideals have much in common with the natural state described by Locke.

Track 5: Sarastro and the chorus hail Tamino and Pamina for their success in the trials. They associate truth, love, and courage with light, and superstition and evil with darkness. They celebrate the victory of love and courage, as it will lead the world to a new age of wisdom. See Schiller, the Marquis de Condorcet, and Kant.

STEP 6: As a final step, play the corresponding music for the examples above, found on Tracks 1 through 5. Playing one example at a time, have students listen while following along to the translation on the handouts. It may be necessary to play each example several times, and students may like to underline the text or make notes on the handout to indicate words that receive special emphasis. A fraternal organization whose members are committed to ideals of morality, justice, and reason, Freemasonry originally grew out of the medieval guilds of stonemasons and the study of the philosophical aspects of math and architecture. Among the central ideas of Masonic thought and practice are the exploration of the nature of man and society and a quasi-religious ritual and mysticism. From its initial popularity in England, the movement had spread across the European continent by the early 18th century.

The first Masonic lodge in Vienna was founded in 1742, and within 40 years, another lodge, “Zur wahren Eintracht” (“True Concord”), had become the foremost community of Viennese artistic, scientific, and literary thinkers. Mozart joined its smaller sister lodge “Zur Wohltätigkeit” (“Beneficence”) in 1784. From his letters it is evident that Freemasonry played a large role in Mozart’s life, and he composed several works for use with Masonic rituals (including the cantatas Dir, Seele des Weltalls and Die Maurerfreude) as well as many more that more generally allude to Masonic symbolism or ideals. Within his lodge, Mozart also found friends and supporters who assisted him financially, with both gifts and commissions for compositions. Of all his works, the one most frequently associated with Masonic sentiments is The Magic Flute. Its evocation of ancient Egypt aligns with Masonic interests, and it prominently uses the number three, which held special significance in Freemasonry: the opera includes Three Ladies as attendants to the Queen of the Night; Three Spirits; three trials that Tamino must endure; a prominent musical motive built from three chords; and a significant role for the key of E-flat major (indicated in music notation by three flats). Although Masonic influences are only one aspect of The Magic Flute, the opera demonstrates the interests of Viennese Freemasonry in its semi-religious program of enlightenment and progress.
Track 2: Pamina and Papageno celebrate their escape from Monostatos and hold music up as a force for good: it encourages peace and happiness. The passage again draws on the imagery of darkness and light, with light connected with happiness— reminiscent of Schiller.

The chorus joins in celebrating the triumph of virtue over vice, looking forward to the realization of an earthly paradise. The passage has themes in common with the Marquis de Condorcet, while the notion of purification calls to mind Kant’s process of enlightenment, as well as Pope.

The Aria as Musical Portrait

Since the beginnings of opera in the 16th century, there has been a distinction between speech-like sections of music designed to move the action forward or to communicate information, and those of a more reflective nature. Within this second type of music, the aria has long been the primary vehicle for operatic characters to communicate their feelings and thoughts. An aria is a self-contained piece for solo voice, typically with orchestral accompaniment. Arias provide an opportunity for composers to use all of the musical and dramatic tools at their disposal to paint a portrait of a character.

In this activity, students will:

• explore the ways in which opera composers differentiate characters
• use musical terminology to describe aspects of melody, harmony, rhythm, and tempo, and orchestration
• explore the different musical characterizations of the major characters of The Magic Flute

STEPS

Students will listen to a selection of arias from The Magic Flute and use the musical terms explained in this exercise, as well as their understanding of the libretto, to articulate their interpretation of the characters of Tamino, Pamina, Papageno, the Queen of the Night, and Sarastro.

STEP 1: It will be helpful for students to have an understanding of the basic plot outline and characters of The Magic Flute. You may wish to allow for time at the beginning of class for students to read the synopsis or to summarize the story for them. Alternatively, students to comment on how the music reflects or amplifies (or alternatively mutes or distorts) the sentiment contained in the text. It is not necessary to use specialized musical vocabulary or engage in advanced musical analysis, but merely to notice the general emotional tone of the passage and comment on which words and phrases are heightened dramatically. A descriptive answer key is provided for your reference below.

Answer Key

Track 1: The music is set in a speech-like vocal style, with little accompaniment by the orchestra. Tamino’s first line on “It’s love and virtue” sounds calm and honorable. In contrast, the Priest’s line on “death and judgment” is much more agitated. The Priest’s final pronouncement, “Unless you join the brotherhood, you will not find the love you seek,” is set to long, ponderous-sounding melodies.

Track 2: The music has a gentle, rocking quality, with the voices singing together in sweet harmonies. The effect is one of simple joy.

Track 3: The chorus enters with a celebratory exclamation as they hail Sarastro, who then enters in a more speech-like style as he gives instructions for Tamino and Papageno’s purification rite. The chorus then explodes in a triumphal style with full orchestral accompaniment as they celebrate the triumph of virtue over vice. The voices and instruments use their higher range, and the orchestra plays rapid figures in the brass and strings.

Track 4: The tempo is slow and dignified, and the music has a prayer-like quality. The voice extends into the very lowest range. The effect is one of gentle admonishment to avoid error and embrace virtue.

Track 5: Sarastro enters in a speech-like style with grand orchestral flourishes emphasizing his lines. When the chorus enters, the music has an almost religious quality, in the style of old church music. Its repeated interjections of “hail” are emphasized by falling figures in the strings. The passage closes with a vigorous, celebratory section as the chorus proclaims that the world will brighten and wisdom will resound.

FOLLOW-UP: As a take-home assignment, have students pick a particular Enlightenment belief or argument, and then create a story that embodies that belief. You may have students merely outline their story, or for a more in-depth exploration, compose a short dramatic scene. Students should feel free to adapt the setting and characters as they like and cast their stories as they see fit, as long as the underlying philosophy or moral of their work is based on an Enlightenment idea.

After students have completed their stories, they may share them, along with commentary on their Enlightenment-era inspiration, in front of the class.

STEP 5: Once you have completed this process for each of the five arias, have students discuss their findings as a class. Encourage them to compare the individual sounds of the arias. What are the attributes that give each solo its unique character? How does the sound of the music match the text? Is this sound appropriate to their understanding of the character’s temperament?

STEP 6: Have students choose their favorite character and write a short paragraph about how the music symbolically represents that character. How does the music make the character distinctive? What about the music do students find appealing or off-putting?

MUSICAL SNAPSHOT

“HERE IN MY HEART, HELL’S BITTERNESS IS SEETHING” (“DER HÖLLE RACHE”) The Queen of the Night is one of the most notoriously difficult roles in all of opera. It requires a soprano with a powerful and high range, but also with great agility and the capability to perform highly virtuosic coloratura. A great example of the demands made on the singer performing this role is the Queen’s Act II aria, “Here in My Heart, Hell’s Bitterness Is Seething” (usually referred to in German as “Der Hölle Rache”). In this scene, the Queen pushes Pamina to kill Sarastro, or else be disowned. The Queen moves through increasing flights of ornamentation and stratospheric high notes, with her frenzied virtuosity making it explicit that she is not the benevolent, mournful character she initially presented herself as in Act I. The text of this aria may be found in the reproducible handouts, and the music may be heard in its entirety on Track 19.
TRACK 17: The Queen of the Night: “Here in My Heart Hell’s Bitterness Is Seething” (“Der Hölle Rache”)

TEXT SUMMARY: The Queen demands that vengeance and death be brought upon Sarastro.

MELODY: Aggressive, staccato, full of large leaps, jagged movement, coloratura, and melismas

HARMONY: Minor

RHYTHM AND TEMPO: Vivace, a very fast tempo, with sweeping flourishes and tremolos in the accompaniment. Sharp, very precise rhythms in the vocal line.

TRACK 18: Sarastro: “O Isis and Osiris”

TEXT SUMMARY: Sarastro petitions the gods (Isis and Osiris) to provide wisdom and guidance to Tamino and Pamina.

HARMONY: Major

RHYTHM AND TEMPO: Very slow and solemn tempo, with consistent and smooth rhythms in the vocal line.

ORCHESTRATION: Wind-heavy texture, including bassoon and trombone.

Ten Essential Musical Terms

Aria A self-contained piece for solo voice, typically with orchestral accompaniment. Arias form a major part of larger works such as operas or oratorios.

Basset horn An alto clarinet with an extended lower range. Like the clarinet, the basset horn possesses a dark, velvety timbre. While it was not a common orchestral instrument, Mozart used it prominently in some of his compositions, notably those with Masonic associations.

Coloratura From the Italian word for “coloring,” coloratura refers to florid, elaborate vocal passages with heavy ornamentation. It may also describe a voice type or singer who possesses the agility and lightness necessary to perform such music.

Glockenspiel A percussion instrument made of tuned metal bars that are struck with a mallet, producing a bell-like sound. In The Magic Flute, that is created by a glockenspiel. The type of glockenspiel Mozart calls for is played using a keyboard similar to a piano.

Legato and Staccato The term legato comes from the Italian word for “to tie together.” It is used in music to describe a series of notes that are played or sung with smooth connection from one note to the next. It is the opposite of staccato, an articulation in which notes are played in a short, detached manner.

Melisma A group of several notes sung to the same syllable of text. Melismatic singing is the opposite of syllabic singing, in which a single note is sung to each syllable of the text. Melismas show off a singer’s breath control, vocal flexibility, and vocal virtuosity. They can vary in length and complexity, often combining step-wise movement from note to note with larger, more difficult leaps.

Major and Minor Western music written since around 1600 has been built on two basic tonal principles: major and minor. Although the terms can be used to describe scales, intervals, harmonies, or keys, in their most basic application they refer to the overarching tonal organization of a composition, or its mode. Pieces in the major mode typically sound bright, cheery, or optimistic, while pieces in the minor mode may sound somber, plaintive, or sinister.

Orchestration An aspect of composition, orchestration is the art of choosing which instruments should play each musical idea in a musical work. Successful orchestration requires that the instrument chosen is appropriate to the melody—that the musical line is within the instrument’s playable range and expressive capabilities. The art of orchestration also allows a composer to draw on and combine the disparate timbres of instruments to amplify melodic expression and create a wide range of musical color. In The Magic Flute, Mozart often uses wind instruments to create a mellow, pastoral texture.

Singspiel A German opera of the 18th or 19th century featuring musical numbers interspersed with spoken dialogue. A singspiel would often incorporate musical elements or stories from folklore. Mozart’s The Magic Flute is regarded as the pinnacle of the genre.

Tempo Literally “time” in Italian, tempo refers to the speed of a piece of music. Tempo is indicated in a score by a variety of conventional (often Italian) words—such as allegro, adagio, vivace, moderato, grave, and many more—that not only provide direction on the composer’s desired rate of speed, but also carry associations of gesture and character. For instance, vivace indicates not only a brisk speed but also a lively spirit. Additional tempo markings may indicate when a composer asks for a section of music to be sped up (such as “accelerando”) or slowed down (such as “rallentando”).

Supporting the Student Experience during The Met: Live in HD Transmission

Watching and listening to a performance is a unique experience that takes students beyond the printed page to an immersion in images, sound, interpretation, technology, drama, skill, and craft. Performance activities help students analyze different aspects of the experience and engage critically with the performance. They will consider the creative choices that have been made for the particular production they are watching and examine different aspects of the performance.

Each Performance Activity incorporates a reproducible sheet. Students should bring this activity sheet to the Live in HD transmission and fill it out during intermission and/or after the final curtain. The activities direct attention to details of the production that might otherwise go unnoticed.

For The Magic Flute, the first activity sheet, Masks and Magic, encourages students to take note of the opera’s use of puppetry and masks. This production of The Magic Flute was directed by Julie Taymor, best known for her work on Broadway, including The Lion King. Students may be familiar with Taymor’s use of puppetry in some of her other works, and they will enjoy considering how this approach contributes to the overall tone of her production of The Magic Flute.

The second, basic activity sheet is called My Highs & Lows. It is meant to be collected, opera by opera, over the course of the season. This sheet serves to guide students toward a consistent set of objective observations, as well as to help them articulate their own opinions. It is designed to enrich the students’ understanding of the art form as a whole. The ratings system encourages students to express their critique: use these ratings to spark discussions that require careful, critical thinking.

The Performance Activity reproducible handouts can be found in the back of this guide. On the next page, you’ll find an activity created specifically for follow-up after the Live in HD transmission.

The art of orchestration also allows a composer to draw on and combine the disparate timbres of instruments to amplify melodic expression and create a wide range of musical color. In The Magic Flute, Mozart often uses wind instruments to create a mellow, pastoral texture.

Singspiel A German opera of the 18th or 19th century featuring musical numbers interspersed with spoken dialogue. A singspiel would often incorporate magical elements or stories from folklore. Mozart’s The Magic Flute is regarded as the pinnacle of the genre.

Tempo Literally “time” in Italian, tempo refers to the speed of a piece of music. Tempo is indicated in a score by a variety of conventional (often Italian) words—such as allegro, adagio, vivace, moderato, grave, and many more—that not only provide direction on the composer’s desired rate of speed, but also carry associations of gesture and character. For instance, vivace indicates not only a brisk speed but also a lively spirit. Additional tempo markings may indicate when a composer asks for a section of music to be sped up (such as “accelerando”) or slowed down (such as “rallentando”).

Supporting the Student Experience during The Met: Live in HD Transmission

Watching and listening to a performance is a unique experience that takes students beyond the printed page to an immersion in images, sound, interpretation, technology, drama, skill, and craft. Performance activities help students analyze different aspects of the experience and engage critically with the performance. They will consider the creative choices that have been made for the particular production they are watching and examine different aspects of the performance.

Each Performance Activity incorporates a reproducible sheet. Students should bring this activity sheet to the Live in HD transmission and fill it out during intermission and/or after the final curtain. The activities direct attention to details of the production that might otherwise go unnoticed.

For The Magic Flute, the first activity sheet, Masks and Magic, encourages students to take note of the opera’s use of puppetry and masks. This production of The Magic Flute was directed by Julie Taymor, best known for her work on Broadway, including The Lion King. Students may be familiar with Taymor’s use of puppetry in some of her other works, and they will enjoy considering how this approach contributes to the overall tone of her production of The Magic Flute.

The second, basic activity sheet is called My Highs & Lows. It is meant to be collected, opera by opera, over the course of the season. This sheet serves to guide students toward a consistent set of objective observations, as well as to help them articulate their own opinions. It is designed to enrich the students’ understanding of the art form as a whole. The ratings system encourages students to express their critique: use these ratings to spark discussions that require careful, critical thinking.

The Performance Activity reproducible handouts can be found in the back of this guide. On the next page, you’ll find an activity created specifically for follow-up after the Live in HD transmission.

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RL.6.7 Compare and contrast the experience of reading a story, drama, or poem to listening to or viewing an audio, video, or live version of the text, including contrasting what they “see” and “hear” when reading the text to what they perceive when they listen or watch.

COMMON CORE STANDARDS

Determine a theme or central idea of a text and analyze in detail its development over the course of the text, including how it emerges and is shaped and refined by specific details; provide an objective summary of the text.

IN PREPARATION

For this activity, students will need the Performance Activity reproducible handouts found in the back of this guide.
IN PREPARATION
This activity requires no preparation other than attendance at the Live in HD transmission of The Magic Flute.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
• To review and synthesize students’ understanding of The Magic Flute
• To explore how musical setting affects dramatic characterization
• To reflect on how artistic choices are made

COMMON CORE STANDARDS AND THE MAGIC FLUTE
CCSS: ELA-Literacy.SL.9-12.1
Initiate and participate effectively in a range of collaborative discussions (one-on-one, in groups, and teacher-led) with diverse partners on grades 9–12 topics, texts, and issues, building on others’ ideas and expressing their own clearly and persuasively.

CCSS: ELA-Literacy.SL.9-12.1d Respond thoughtfully to diverse perspectives; synthesize comments, claims, and evidence made on all sides of an issue; resolve contradictions when possible; and determine what additional information or research is required to deepen the investigation or complete the task.

Students will enjoy starting the class with an open discussion of the Met performance. What did they like? What didn’t they? Did anything surprise them? What would they like to see or hear again? What would they have done differently? The discussion offers an opportunity to apply the notes on students’ My Highs & Lows sheet, as well as their thoughts about the visual design of the Met production—in short, to see themselves as The Magic Flute experts.

A central aspect of the plot of The Magic Flute is the revelation that the Queen of the Night is not an innocent grieving mother, and Sarastro is not an evil sorcerer—that, in fact, their roles are reversed. Students may enjoy discussing their initial impressions of these characters and how convincing they found them. You may prompt them with the following questions:

• Was the Queen of the Night believable when she first appeared in the opera? Was there anything about her music, the staging, or the costume design that hinted at her true nature?
• When did you first begin to doubt that Sarastro was an evil character? What helped convince you?
• Do you think there was a significant difference between the music and design of the Queen of the Night early in the opera compared her later appearances?
• Alternatively, do you think the shift in roles (good vs. evil) was ineffective? Do you think the opera would have been stronger dramatically if there were no shift?

Encourage students to think about how the characters of Monostatos and the Three Spirits fit into the scheme of good characters and bad characters. How do the magical instruments function, and if they are powerful forces for good, why are they in the possession of the Queen of the Night? Why does Sarastro have someone like Monostatos in his employ?

Finally, quiz students on whether they find the opera’s way of telling the story to be dramatically inconsistent. Do these questions matter in their appreciation of The Magic Flute as a work of drama, or in their enjoyment of its music? The goal of this exercise is to encourage students to think of opera as an art form with many component parts, which may be in accord with one another, in conflict, or one of which may transcend the others.

Enlightened Opera: The Magic Flute as a Work of the Age of Reason

Enlightenment Principles Handout

“Enlightenment is man’s release from his self-incurred tutelage. Tutelage is man’s inability to make use of his understanding without direction from another. Self-incurred is this tutelage when its cause lies not in lack of reason but in lack of resolution and courage to use it without direction from another. Sapere aude! ‘Have courage to use your own reason!’—that is the motto of enlightenment.”
—Immanuel Kant, “What Is Enlightenment” (1784)

Know then thyself, presume not God to scan;
The proper study of mankind is man...
Go, wondrous creature! Mount where science guides,
Go, measure earth, weigh air, and state the tides;
Instruct the planets in what orbs to run,
Correct old time, and regulate the sun;
Go, soar with Plato to th’ empyreal sphere,
To the first good, first perfect, and first fair...

—Alexander Pope, Essay on Man (1733)

“Only through Beauty’s morning-gate, dost thou penetrate the land of knowledge.”
—Friedrich Schiller, “The Artist” (1786)

Our hopes, as to the future condition of the human species, may be reduced to three points: the destruction of inequality between different nations; the progress of equality in one and the same nation; and lastly, the real improvement of man.

Will not every nation one day arrive at the state of civilization attained by those people who are most enlightened, most free, most exempt from prejudices, as the French, for instance, and the Anglo-Americans? Will not the slavery of countries subjected to kings... gradually vanish? Is there upon the face of the globe a single spot the inhabitants of which are condemned by nature never to enjoy liberty, never to exercise their reason?

Some years ago I was struck by the large number of falsehoods that I had accepted as true in my childhood, and by the highly doubtful nature of the whole edifice that I had subsequently based on them. I realized that it was necessary, once in the course of my life, to demolish everything completely and start again right from the foundations if I wanted to establish anything at all in the sciences that was stable and likely to last.

—René Descartes, Meditations on First Philosophy (1641)

“To properly understand political power and trace its origins, we must consider the state that all people are in naturally. That is a state of perfect freedom of acting and disposing of their own possessions and persons as they think fit within the bounds of the law of nature. People in this state do not have to ask permission to act or depend on the will of others to arrange matters on their behalf. The natural state is also one of equality in which all power and jurisdiction is reciprocal and no one has more than another. It is evident that all human beings—as creatures belonging to the same species and rank and born indiscriminately with all the same natural advantages and faculties—are equal amongst themselves.”

—John Locke, Two Treatises on Government (1689)

Enlightened Opera: The Magic Flute as a Work of the Age of Reason (CONT’D)

TRACK 1

PRIEST: Who comes now to the temple door? Pray, tell, what are you searching for?

TAMINO: It’s love and virtue that I seek.

PRIEST: Your words disclose a noble mind. But wait—how would you undertake this? For love will not be yours to find while death and vengeance cloud your judgment.

TAMINO: But villains all deserve to die!

PRIEST: There is no villain in this temple.

TAMINO: Is this the temple of Sarastro?

PRIEST: Yes, here the great Sarastro rules.

TAMINO: He is a monster and my foe!

PRIEST: And can you prove what you are saying?

TAMINO: The Queen of the Night can prove it. She suffers grief and constant woe. The golden disk of the Sun our Brotherhood helps to protect. She plots to steal the golden disk and plunge the world into darkness.

TAMINO: The Queen has tangled me in lies! To free myself from her deceit, you mean that I must join Sarastro?

PRIEST: Or never find the truth you seek.

TAMINO: Where is she? I have sworn to save her. How will I ever find Pamina?

PRIEST: Unless you join the Brotherhood, you will not find the love you seek.

TRACK 2

PAMINA/PAPAGENO: Bells with such a magic charm made our captors leave us. No one’s come to any harm. Music lets mankind agree, joined in peaceful harmony. Evil men are put to flight, loss is turned to laughter. When the darkness yields to light, happiness comes after!

TRACK 3
CHORUS: Long life to Sarastro!
Our order’s foundation!
He judges with wisdom and rules with compassion.

SARASTRO: Bring them within our temple walls,
where these young men are to be tried.
Cover their heads. They may not see.
They must now first be purified.

CHORUS: When love joins with integrity and virtue triumphs over vice,
then mankind truly will be free,
and earth become a paradise.

TRACK 4
SARASTRO: Within our sacred Temple,
all error we forgive.
Revenge is never taken.
By love do all men live.
Forever faithful and forthright,
we pledge ourselves to guard the light.

TRACK 5
SARASTRO: The Sun’s golden splendor has banished the night!
The forces of darkness are vanquished by right.

CHORUS: Hail the two who triumphed!
They conquered the night.
Hail, hail, Isis and Osiris.
Hail, hail, we look to your light!
So courage has triumphed
and true love is crowned.
The world now will brighten.
Let wisdom resound.

TRACK 14

Tamino: "This Portrait’s Beauty I Adore"
("Dies Bildnis ist bezaubernd schön")

Tamino: This portrait’s beauty I adore.
A wonder never seen before!
What is this, this yearning?
Is it love I feel?
If so, to true love I yield!
Oh, nothing can keep us apart.
Oh, to her I pledge my heart.

Pamina: “Now My Heart Is Filled with Sadness”
("Ach, ich fühle")

Pamina: Now my heart is filled with sadness!
Gone, gone, is love’s delight;
Lost forever joy and gladness!
Every brightness turned to night!
Look, Tamino,
I am weeping, yet you turn away from me.
If your love is not for keeping,
let my sorrow die with me.

Papageno: "I’m Papageno, That’s My Name"
("Der Vogelfänger bin ich ja")

Papageno: I’m Papageno, that’s my name.
And catching birds, well, that’s my game!
My snares are laid. My sights are set.
I whistle them into my net.
My life’s my own, so bright and free,
for all the birds belong to me.
If only there were traps for girls,
I’d catch a dozen by their curls.
I’m Papageno, that’s my name.
And catching birds, well, that’s my game!
And when I get them nice and plump
I’ll trade some for a sugar lump.
Then give it to my favorite one,
and woo her till her heart is won.
Oh, snuggled in my nest we’d lie and gently rock to a lullaby.

The Queen of the Night: "Here in My Heart
Hell’s Bitterness Is Seething"
("Der Hölle Rache")

Queen of the Night: Here in my heart, hell’s bitterness is seething.
Death and vengeance force the vow I swore.
If you refuse to murder Sarastro, then I will curse my daughter ever more.
Sarastro once betrayed me!
Tamino now betrays me!
My daughter would betray me
and her mother’s love deny.
Abandoned, forsaken, and tormented,
his dominion I defy!
And you must find the strength to kill Sarastro!
Swear, swear, swear to avenge me!
Swear or you will die!

At the Met: Masks and Magic

Julie Taymor’s production and costume design for The Magic Flute includes puppets and masks. Use this handout to make notes about when these elements appear and how they affect your impression of the world of The Magic Flute and its characters. Are the designs realistic? Whimsical? Do they seem to occur at particular dramatic moments or for specific types of characters? Try to notice each time masks and puppetry appear in the production.

At the Met: Masks and Magic

Julie Taymor's production and costume design for The Magic Flute includes puppets and masks. Use this handout to make notes about when these elements appear and how they affect your impression of the world of The Magic Flute and its characters. Are the designs realistic? Whimsical? Do they seem to occur at particular dramatic moments or for specific types of characters? Try to notice each time masks and puppetry appear in the production.
